2. Service Guide

We offer the following services and products.

2.1 Polygraph Examinations

As our name clearly states, we are in the first instance a polygraph examination service provider. We have three main types of polygraph examinations on offer, namely Specific Polygraph Examinations, Pre-employment Polygraph Examinations and Polygraph Screening/Periodic Examinations.

2.1.1 Specific Polygraph Examinations

This type of Polygraph Examination is a case/issue specific examination that is aimed at identifying the deceptive and clearing the innocent.

It is important to note that although two, three or even four relevant questions may be asked during a Specific Polygraph Examination, the result of such an examination will always be “DECEPTION INDICATED”, “NO DECEPTION INDICATED” or “INCONCLUSIVE”.

Polygraph Examinations of this kind can be used in any type of scenario where the aim is to determine the involvement of persons in a specific incident.

2.1.2 Pre-employment Polygraph Examinations

The name of this examination is self – explanatory. In some instances of utilization of this technique, it can with justification be called “Screening Polygraph Examinations”. Pre-employment Polygraph Examinations are utilized by Institutions, Companies or Governments where all applicants are subjected to this type of polygraph examination to determine their suitability for employment.

A polygraph examination will also have the following benefits:

- Ensuring the applicant was honest on the application form;
- Giving the applicant an opportunity to make voluntary admissions, and
- Enabling the employer to make a decision based on information gained before, during and after the polygraph examination, as well as the result of the examination.

The following relevant questions are suggested as a basis for developing your own set of questions. (Note: Please bear in mind the polygraph ethics restricts examiners to the use of a maximum of eight relevant questions in a pre-employment polygraph examination.)

- Do you have any debt, which you did not tell me about?
- Have you used any illegal substances in the past two years?
- Are you currently a member of a criminal group?
- Did you ever commit an undetected crime, which you did not tell me about?
- Did you ever steal anything to the value of R100 or more from any place you worked at in the past?

2.1.3 Polygraph Screening/Periodic Examinations

Periodic polygraph examinations also referred to as maintenance examinations is used as a preventative measure. It reduces theft and fraud by identifying compromised individuals during periodic screening. This type of examination is particularly effective in industries with large volumes of stock. Having regular examinations in such a setting offers a psychological shield against theft as employees know they will be subjected to intermittent testing. Staff would also then be less likely to fall victim to criminal syndicates looking for a soft target. Recommended for positions of trust Criminal syndicates often target individuals with access to physical wealth or sensitive corporate accounts and information.

These positions include:

- Managers & Department heads
- Stock controllers
- Finance staff
- R&D personnel
- Cleaning staff
- Company Security personnel
- Domestic workers

3. Scientific Content Analysis

Scientific Content Analysis (SCAN) is the Analysis of the written language in an open statement. This analysis has the advantage that a large number of persons can be asked to answer a Questionnaire in writing and the Questionnaire can then be mailed/faxed/e-mailed to the Analyst for analysis.

3.1 Interviewing and Interrogation

All the members of our company are fully versed in interviewing and interrogation techniques and this service is provided at an hourly rate.
